ORDER
15.01.2014

Heard learned counsel for parties. This review application has been filed seeking review of the final order of the Tribunal dated 25.05.2012. This review application has been filed after delay of 508 days. We perused the reasons given in the application for condonation of delay and found that there is no reason given for not filing the review application in time, much less to show any sufficient cause for the delay. Therefore, the review application is liable to be dismissed only on the ground of limitation. However, we also examined the merit and found that on merit also, no case is made out by the petitioner for seeking review of the order. Hence, the review petition is dismissed on both the grounds.
